1. The Yugoslav Minister, Franc Pirc, has decided to maintain the Comision Coordinadora de Ayuda a Yugooslavia (CCAY-Coordinating Commission for Aid to Yugoslavia) in spite of the fear of police suppression. It had been announced previously that this Commission would be abolished and its Communist activities assumed by the Cruz Roja Yugooslava (Yugoslav Red Cross).
2. The Yugoslav leaders in Argentina are developing plans to counter-act expected police interference. All figure-heads and non-dynamic Communists in the CCAY, such as Ante Paparella and Ivo Sazunic, have been eliminated and replaced by the following officials:

Vendimir Kosinic
Franc Koren
Dinko Filipovic
Antonio Zanetic
Franc Kovac
Jose Marinkovic
Ivan Matosovic
Petar Miljevic
Liliana Nanuth
Lola Polak
Slavko Tnokov

President
Vice President
Secretary-General
Treasurer

3. The principal task of the Commission is to collect funds for aid to Yugoslavia, and to finance the local party work. The Polish Bank in Buenos Aires has made advances of 15,000 and 45,000 pesos during the current year to be repaid by funds from the aid collections. (As reported in [REDACTED], about 500,000 Argentine pesos have been collected from Yugoslavs throughout Argentina.) Actual money is never sent to Yugoslavia. Food, clothing, and medicine are bought in Argentina and shipped to Yugoslavia. A campaign is now being conducted to collect 500,000 pesos before the end of the year.
